The Vaughan Metropolitan Centre area is seeing major transformation, the Spadina subway is opening this year, there are buses running in the Highway 7 rapidway between Jane Street and Bowes Road, Bathurst and Centre utility upgrades are fully underway, and Highway 7 Woodbridge is seeing its first major utility relocations. It’s exciting to see so much progress and activity happening right now.

All of this is happening within Vaughan’s active communities, where people live, work, shop and socialize. More and more people are attracted to the City of Vaughan and all it has to offer.

The vivaNext projects in Vaughan are supporting future growth, increased development and better transit connections to the GTHA.

We’re making sure that residents, businesses and new developments are provided with the necessary infrastructure to support the growing communities into the future. For example, new water main, gas main, hydro, telecommunications, welcoming streetscapes and, of course, transit, are all being built now to meet current and future demand for generations to come.

Vaughan Metropolitan Centre (VMC) Station

The Toronto-York Spadina Subway Extension (TYSSE) is scheduled to open in December 2017. The vivastation, located in the middle of Highway 7, and the rapidway from Edgeley Boulevard to Jane Street, will fully open in Spring 2018. Viva customers will be able to take full advantage of this station’s connections to the VMC area, the subway and the new bus terminal.

YRT Route 77 and Viva Purple are currently travelling in the completed rapidway until the subway opens in December 2017. When this happens, these bus routes will change as the subway will replace portions of their routes.
Your Community Liaisons are out and about in the community, meeting and talking with people all year throughout Vaughan. Activities include meetings with businesses, schools, resident groups, pop-up information booths, concerts in the park and other events. They’re happy to answer any of your questions or concerns.

safety first
Please give yourself enough time to get to your destination, and remember to reduce your speed through construction zones for the safety of the community and workers in the area.

During construction, crossing at designated crosswalks is more important than ever. When driving, pay close attention to construction signs and road markings.
